

“(2) Holders of valid passports bearing on the cover the inscription ‘British passport: Dominion of New Zealand’ and, inside, a description of the holder’s national status as ‘British subject’ shall be free to travel to Denmark by any route without the necessity of obtaining a visa in advance.

“(3) It is understood that the waiver of the visa requirement does not exempt Danish citizens and British subjects travelling respectively to New Zealand and to Denmark from the necessity of complying with the New Zealand and Danish laws and regulations concerning the entry, residence (temporary or permanent) and employment or occupation of foreigners, and that travellers who are unable to satisfy the Immigration authorities that they comply with these laws and regulations are liable to be refused leave to enter or land.

“(4) As regards travel by Danish citizens to New Zealand Island Territories and the Trust Territory of Western Samoa, visas will not be required but it will be necessary for travellers to comply with the laws and regulations concerning the entry, residence (temporary or permanent) and employment or occupation of foreigners in the Island Territories or the Trust Territory of Western Samoa as the case may be. Travellers who are unable to satisfy the Immigration authorities that they comply with these regulations may be refused leave to enter or land.

“(5) As regards travel to and within Greenland it is understood that special permits will continue to be required.”

I have the honour to inform you that the Danish Government are prepared to put into force the foregoing provisions and that they consider your letter and my present reply as constituting between the two Governments an agreement which is to come into force on the first day of January, 1949.

I have, &c.,

KARL I. ESKELUND.
