The rank of Superintendent has been created, and the Inspectors in charge at Auckland, Wellington, Christchurch, and Dunedin have been appointed thereto. The strength of commissioned officers has been increased by two Inspectors, stationed at Auckland and Wellington respectively.

STATIONS.

New stations have been established at Takapuna, Havelock North, and Gonville; and the station at Scinde (Napier) has been closed.

The boundaries of the Auckland and Thames Districts have been altered by transferring fifteen stations in the southern portion of the Auckland District to the Thames District. The enlarged district so formed is now known as the Hamilton District, the headquarters having been transferred from Thames to Hamilton.

CASUALTIES,

The following are the casualties for the year ended the 31st March last: Retired on pension under Public Service Superannuation Act, 4; retired as medically unfit, 3; died, 9; resigned voluntarily, 30; called upon to resign, 1; transferred to Civil Service, 2; dismissed, 4; services dispensed with, 3: total, 56. This is the same number as in the preceding year.

CRIMINAL STATISTICS.

The criminal statistics (Appendix A) deal with all offences reported to the police during the year ended the 31st December last, and show an aggregate net increase of 982 on the figures of 1911. The proportion of offences to the population was 2.35 per cent., as against 2.32 the previous year.

1-H. 16.

The principal increases during the year appear under the following headings, viz.:-

2 1	9

The direct cost to the Dominion in detecting and prosecuting sly-grog sellers during the year was £385 12s. 1d., this being £1,054 17s. 11d. less than the amount of fines imposed.

GAMING OFFENCES.

There were 345 prosecutions, resulting in 301 convictions, during the year under the gaming laws, against 152 prosecutions and 120 convictions in 1911.

CRIMINAL REGISTRATION.

This branch of the Department continues to be of great value to the Police Force.

During the year the Police Gazette increased in volume by 88 pages of printed matter; 1,062 photographs were taken by the photographers, an increase of 244 over the preceding year; the portraits of 1,361 prisoners were dealt with; 183 prisoners were traced as previous offenders; and 6 detections were entirely due to finger-print identification. The work for the last quarter shows an increase of 60 per cent.

On the 31st March last the finger-print collection consisted of the impressions of 13,552 offenders, being an increase of 1,455 on the previous year.

The following table shows the increase of the finger-print collection, and prisoners traced thereby, since the introduction of the finger-print system of identification in March, 1903:—

GROWTH OF DEPARTMENT.

The following return shows the growth of the Department, the continued increase of the population, and the total number of offences (irrespective of by-law offences) reported, and in which arrests or summonses resulted, each year since 1877, prior to which date each province in the Dominion had its own Police Force, and reliable data are not available:—

In addition to the strength of the Force as shown above, there were 16 district constables, 8 Native constables, 4 police surgeons (one in each city), and 4 matrons (one in each city).

GENERAL.

The old regulations, which had been in force in the Department for upwards of a quarter of a century, and which had become quite obsolete, were replaced by a new set which took effect from the 1st of last March. The present Police Force Act, which was passed in 1886, is also obsolete, and should be replaced by a new and up-to-date one.

A new scale of pay was devised, which came into force on the 1st of April, being the completion of a scheme which was initiated by my predecessor.

A new style of uniform has also been introduced, which gives a smarter appearance to the wearer than the old style did. Blue and white helmets replace the shako, which was neither useful nor ornamental as a head-dress.

The connection of police-stations with the telephone-system has been extended, the number of stations in which the telephone is installed having been increased by 24 during the year. The linking-up of police-stations with the telephone bureaux, especially in the remoter districts, is a great advantage to both settlers and the police in getting police matters attended to expeditiously.

Considerable advantage is also derived from the use of bicycles in the performance of police duty. There are about 180 members of the Force who use their own bicycles on duty and who are granted an allowance for the same. By this arrangement the mobility and efficiency of the Force is considerably increased in city and suburban districts, and in the country where the roads are well graded and

During the year a strike took place among the men employed in the gold-mining industry at Waihi and Waikino, which necessitated over 80 members of the Force being drafted there from various parts of the Dominion to protect life and property and keep order as between the strikers and free labourers who came to fill the places vacated by the former. The police, during the five or six months they were on special duty at Waihi, had to perform very harassing duty, and were subjected to gross insults and abuse from the strikers and their womenfolk, yet, notwithstanding the irksome duties the men had to perform and the abuse and insults levelled at them, not a solitary case of misconduct was reported against any member of the Force. The tact and forbearance exercised by the police enabled them at all times to maintain a complete mastery of the situation at Waihi, and I have no hesitation in stating that they proved themselves to be a body of men that the Dominion should be proud of.

Owing to a strike having occurred among the coal miners at Huntly, a detachment of police had to be sent there for a few weeks, but, as very little disturbance took place and the men returned to work, the police were soon withdrawn.

The steady increase in population throughout the Dominion and the consequent increase in police work is causing a constant demand from the public and from the police officers in charge of districts for more police in the city and suburban areas as well as in the country towns and more remote country districts. These demands cannot, however, be granted till such time as a substantial numerical increase to the present strength of the Force has been authorized. The taking-over of the control of the street traffic in certain localities also calls for an increase in the number of the police in those places. The Auckland Exhibition, which opens on the 1st December next, will also cause a demand for extra police in Auckland City and at the Exhibition itself, which must be complied with.

It is to be hoped that when the numerical strength of the Force is increased it will be found possible—without lessening the police protection of the streets—to deal liberally with the requests of police constables for more regular Sunday leave, and for time off in lieu of time spent by them in attending Court when off duty, than they at present receive. Definite instructions have already been issued that these concessions must be given whenever possible.

To meet all these demands for extra police would entail an increase of fully 100 men to the present authorized strength, but as this would involve an additional sum of £17,000 to the cost of the Department, I cannot ask that such a large increase be made in any one year. I am, however, reluctantly compelled to ask for an increase this year of 30 constables to the present authorized strength of the Force.

For very many years the police have been performing work for other Government Departments that does not come within the scope of ordinary police duties; and year by year the work so performed has increased in volume and variety, with the result that the police, while attending to these extraneous duties, have to be withdrawn from, or to neglect, their own duties to a certain extent, which means a loss of efficiency in the service, while the Departments for which the work has been performed thereby gain in efficiency and economy at the expense of this service. I think the time has now arrived when the question should be considered as to whether those Departments which make such free use of the police should not have to pay a specified annual amount for the services rendered. As this Department has to pay for all services rendered to it by other Departments, it is only reasonable to expect that it should receive some remuneration for the services it renders to other Departments.

Reports of Officers in charge of Districts.

Extracts from the annual reports of the officers in charge of districts are hereto annexed.

J. CULLEN,

Commissioner of Police.

EXTRACTS FROM ANNUAL REPORTS OF OFFICERS IN CHARGE OF DISTRICTS.

SUPERINTENDENT ELLISON, WELLINGTON DISTRICT.

The authorized strength of the district on the 31st ultimo was 156, as against 149 at the end of the previous year. The increase is made up by one Inspector promoted to Superintendent and another Inspector added to Wellington Station; 4 sergeants transferred to Wellington so as to establish a city sectional station at Manners Street, 1 sergeant permanently added to Lambton Quay Station, who has been there temporarily, and I constable added to Kilbirnie Station.

No stations have been opened, and none closed. New buildings have been erected at Wakefield, and a quarter of an acre of land, with a house thereon, has been purchased at Kilbirnie.

During the year 2 constables died, 6 resigned, and 2 were dismissed.

One senior sergeant, 2 sergeants, 2 detectives, and 20 constables were transferred to other districts; 1 Inspector, 1 detective sergeant, 7 sergeants, and 10 constables were transferred from other districts, and 15 trained recruits were appointed to the district.

The general conduct of the Force in this district has been good. Two men were dismissed for grave misconduct; but apart from these two cases, there was nothing to specially complain of, only 6 men having been fined for breaches of discipline.

For the year ended the 31st December, 1912, the number of all offences reported was 6,025, as against 5,513 for the previous year. Out of this number, 5,720 were arrested or prosecuted by summons, leaving 305 unaccounted for. The undetected or unaccounted-for offences consist principally of petty thefts and ship-desertion. The increases are principally under the headings of—Drunkenness, 466; abusive or threatening behaviour, 22; ship-desertion, 25; disobeying orders of Court, 27; obstructing police, 18; soliciting prostitution, 37; thefts, 70. Decreases appear principally under—Indecent assault, 9; breaches of peace, 26; burglary and housebreaking, 27; carnally knowing young girls, 5; failing to provide for relatives, 14; false pretences, 12; illegally on premises, 17; opiumsmoking, 10; refusing to quit licensed premises, 12; vagrancy, 18.

The district has been very free from serious crimes. The worst description, coming under the heads of burglary, forgery, and indecent assaults, all show a decrease for the past year.

I am not disposed to suggest any additions to statute law at present. The number of Acts passed since the statutes were consolidated in 1908 indicates that we have about enough law to go on with for a few years. When an opportunity does arise for amending the licensing laws, I think some attention should be given to benefits for the general public who make use of licensed premises as a necessary boon and convenience, so that a better scale of accommodation might be ensured in cases where such is required. I understand the difficulty of opening the question owing to the divergent opinions of the two parties who take such keen interest in the subject, one desiring to destroy and the other to defend the existence of licensed houses, so that travellers, tourists, and the general public who desire to use licensed hotels for legitimate and necessary purposes have been ignored altogether.

I desire to mention that the Police Regulations recently published, and the general tendency to improve the Police service which has been apparent for the past six or nine months, should have a beneficial effect on the Police Force in general.

If the examinations to be held in the various ranks are prepared so as to be a test of the practical knowledge, common-sense, and discrimination of the candidates, and that plain legible writing and good spelling be one of the principal points by which marks are to be gained, then a splendid result may be anticipated.

The fact that the highest position in the service is now open to the members of it, instead of making little of and shunting aside competent qualified officers in favour of experimental outsiders, as has been the custom in the past, is already being favourably felt throughout the service.

An addition of at least twelve constables to Wellington City will be required, consequent upon the establishment of a new city section (Manners Street), and the regulation of all street traffic under agreement with the City Council. Old beats, which have in the past been very long, will have to be curtailed and new beats established, as well as three permanent points in the busiest throughfares. I also beg to suggest that a new residential station for one constable be established at Kelburne, and that arrangements may be made for moving the station now located at Clyde Quay from there to a convenient position about Oriental Bay, where there can be more supervision of Roseneath, a growing suburban locality.

SUPERINTENDENT MITCHELL, AUCKLAND DISTRICT.

The strength of the Force in the Auckland District on the 31st March last was 1 Superintendent, 1 Inspector, 1 Sub-Inspector, 3 senior sergeants, 16 sergeants, 133 constables, 1 Chief Detective, 2 detective sergeants, 7 detectives, 2 acting-detectives, 6 district constables, 4 Native constables, 1 matron, and 1 surgeon.

On the 1st February last the following stations were detached from this district and added to the Hamilton Police District: Hamilton, Cambridge, Frankton Junction, Huntly, Kawhia, Kihikihi, Kirikiriroa, Ngaruawahia, Ongarue, Otorohanga, Raglan, Raurimu, Taumarunui, Te Awamutu, and This involved a transfer of 1 senior sergeant and 22 constables to the latter district.

Pukekohe and Otahuhu Stations have been increased by 1 constable each, and Onehunga by 2 constables. I beg to recommend that at least 6 additional constables be added to the strength of the Central Station, and 1 constable to the Newmarket Station, so that adequate protection may be afforded property and a rapidly increasing population.

H.—16.

No stations have been opened or closed during the year.

One constable was discharged as medically unfit, and 6 constables resigned voluntarily.

The conduct of the members of the Force, with few exceptions, has been good.

The population in the City and Suburbs of Auckland is rapidly increasing, and in many of the outlying parts of the district there is a steady increase. There is undoubted evidence of prosperity existing more or less throughout the district.

During the year ended the 31st December, 1912, there were 6,833 offences reported, as against 6,622 the previous year. The increase is largely due to 183 cases under the Gaming Act resulting from raids made. 95 per cent. of the offences reported during the year were detected.

The evil known as the "one-woman brothel" exists very largely in Auckland, and I would suggest that legislation be passed to cope with this nuisance.

SUPERINTENDENT KIELY, CHRISTCHURCH DISTRICT.

On the 31st March last the strength of the Force was as follows: 1 Superintendent, 2 Sub-Inspectors, 4 senior sergeants, 10 sergeants, 105 constables, 5 detectives, and 5 acting-detectives. A matron and a surgeon are attached to the Christchurch Station.

There was 1 death, 8 voluntary resignations, and 2 dismissals during the year.

An increase of 5 constables to the strength of Christchurch Station is necessary to enable a further extension of the beats within the city.

An additional constable will be required at Fairlie Station, owing to the very large district the constable in charge has to travel over, and the increase of population for some time past in the town and the locality surrounding it. A station will be required to be opened in the vicinity of Caroline Bay, a suburb of Timaru.

The number of stations in the district is 45. There were none opened or closed during the year.

New offices and quarters for men have been provided at Ashburton; new sergeants' quarters have been provided at Rangiora; and new constables quarters have been erected at Temuka.

Thirteen constables were punished by fine for breaches of the Police Regulations; the offences were of minor description, but 2 constables were dismissed for drunkenness. The conduct of the men otherwise was very good. I am of the opinion that the discipline to be carried out under the new regulations will have a good effect upon the younger members of the service, who show occasionally an inclination to lapse into carelessness when on duty. It is in the best interests of the service that the men as a body should endeavour to maintain a high standard of good conduct and efficiency, and the new regulations contain all the instructions necessary for their guidance. The old regulations were obsolete and useless for modern requirements, and should have been discarded years ago.

The total number of offences reported during the year ending on the 31st December, 1912, was 4,011, and the number of persons apprehended or summoned was 3,821. An increase of 40 offences is shown in comparison with the number of offences reported for the year 1911. The principal increases in offences for the year are as follows: Absconding from industrial schools, 37; assaults occasioning bodily harm, 6; assaults on police, 14; deserting from merchant vessels, 34; discharging firearms, 6; disorderly and riotous conduct, 19; failing to provide adequate maintenance for wives, &c., 54; forgery and uttering, 15; manslaughter, 6; mischief, 58; neglected and criminal children, 39; obscene and profane language, 19; obstructing and resisting police, 11; obstructing thoroughfares, 12; sly-grog selling, 12; suicide, attempted, 10; theft, attempted, 13. The principal decreases for the year are as follows: Assaults, common, 29; assaults, indecent, 7; breaches of the peace, 11; burglary, 8; disobeying orders of Court, 35; drunkenness, 69; offences under Fisheries Acts, 11; malicious injury to property, 20; theft (undescribed), 43; theft by servants, 18; theft from dwellings, 21; vagrancy, 27.

I am pleased to have no serious outbreak of crime in the district to report. In comparison with 1911 there has been an increase of 40 in the number of offences reported, but none of these call for any special mention; and of the total number of all offences reported during the year, 4,011, there were 3,821 persons arrested or summoned, which indicates that the police of the district are efficient, and have shown that by zeal and energy they have succeeded in maintaining fairly good order.

SUPERINTENDENT DWYER, DUNEDIN DISTRICT.

The authorized strength of the Force in the district on the 31st March was 106, made up as follows: 1 Superintendent, 1 Sub-Inspector, 2 senior sergeants, 11 sergeants, 86 constables, 1 Chief Detective, 3 detective sergeants, and 1 detective.

There have been no new stations opened in the district, and no stations closed.

The following casualties have taken place during the year: 2 constables died, 2 retired on pension under the Public Service Superannuation Act, 5 resigned voluntarily, and 1 was called upon to resign.

The conduct of the sergeants and men in the district has, with few exceptions, been very good. The offences return as compiled for the 31st December last shows that 1,773 offences were reported, and 1,682 persons apprehended or dealt with by summons. These figures show a decrease of 167 reported offences as compared with the previous year's return, when 1,940 offences were reported. This decrease is accounted for by a falling-off in drunkenness, disobeying orders of Court, and thefts (undescribed).

There have been no serious crimes committed in the district during the year to call for special mention.

I have no recommendations to make as far as any alteration in the law is concerned.

The licensing laws have been strictly enforced during the year, and sly-grog selling in no-license areas has been kept well in check.

The increase in pay and the recent promotions in the Force have given better heart and encouragement to the rank and file, and have brought about a better state of contentment in the service.

INSPECTOR WILSON, WANGANUI DISTRICT.

The authorized strength is 1 Inspector, 1 Sub-Inspector, 2 senior sergeants, 5 sergeants, 69 constables, 2 detective sergeants, 1 detective, 1 acting-detective, and 1 district constable, being an increase of two since my last report. Wanganui has had an increase of 1 constable, and a new station at Gonville accounts for the other.

The following increases are required: 1 constable at Hawera, the 2 constables already there being insufficient to meet the very many calls, escort duty, &c.

I would ask that a plain-clothes constable be sent to Wanganui, owing to the very many calls on Detective-Sergeant Siddells, whom I have frequently to send out over a very large area (between Rangitikei and Waiongora Rivers). I therefore require a young and energetic man to look after the petty thieves and spielers who visit the town from time to time—a man who could devote the whole of his time to the town, to note and generally look after suspicious arrivals. The size and growth of the town warrants this. I strongly urge that these men be given me.

I am also of opinion that another constable should be posted at Eltham, or a station opened at Kaponga in the near future.

The casualties during the year were—1 sergeant retired medically unfit, 1 constable died, 1 constable resigned, and 2 constables dismissed.

With the exception of 2 constables whose services were dispensed with, the conduct of the constables has been good, and fairly satisfactory.

The offences return shows a decrease of over 200 offences. There were substantial decreases in the number of persons charged with drunkenness, assaults, breaches of the peace, false pretences, thefts, and vagrancy. There were only 75 undetected offences, or less than 4 per cent. of the total, showing that the work of the police must be held to be fairly successful.

I am pleased to say the district has been particularly free from serious crime during the year. The Judges have invariably commented on this fact when opening the Supreme Court sessions.

In this district there are upwards of 1,800 motor-cars, motor-cycles, and motor-vehicles registered. In all the boroughs and some of the counties all vehicles must carry lights at night, but in the rest of the district there is no rule on the subject. I would suggest an amendment of the Police Offences Act, making it an offence to drive a vehicle along any public road after sunset without a light. I am sure, in view of the greatly increased traffic, as evinced by the above list of motor-vehicles, that it is necessary in the interests of public safety.

Section 7 of the Police Offences Act requires amendment. Under the first clause of section 7 a person is liable to a fine or two months' imprisonment; under subsection (3) a person is liable to six months' imprisonment, and he may claim the right to be tried by a jury. I submit all such cases should be dealt with summarily and that this contradiction should not exist.

Difficulty is frequently experienced in getting Magistrates to alter the gaol in a warrant of commitment; they say there is no authority. For instance, a man is convicted and fined 10s., or 48 hours, for drunkenness or some petty offence, and is given by the Magistrate a week to pay; he clears out, and when the warrant is issued to the police, may have gone to the other Island. When he is found he declines to pay, and has to be sent to the prison mentioned in the warrant, at a very great expense, in some cases arriving at the prison only in time to be discharged. I submit some clause should be inserted in the Justices of the Peace Act to empower a Magistrate to alter the warrant of commitment or issue the warrant in first instance to the nearest gaol when found.

There is still a small trade carried on in sly-grog selling in the prohibited area of Upper Wanganui and King-country, and there have been a number of prosecutions and convictions during the year.

As there are in nearly all towns a number of men who make books on races, and it is almost impossible for the local police to deal with such offences, perhaps it would be possible to organize a small section of the detective branch of the service to take the matter in hand through the Dominion. I feel confident it would greatly abate the trouble. I understand a scheme somewhat similar to this has been working in Victoria for some time.

INSPECTOR O'DONOVAN, NAPIER DISTRICT.

On the 10th June, 1912, I arrived on transfer from Invercargill, and took charge of Napier District, in succession to Inspector Dwyer.

The authorized strength of the Force in the district on the 31st March last was 50, the same as on the 31st March, 1912.

One sergeant was promoted to the rank of senior sergeant, and 1 detective to the rank of detective sergeant; but no further changes ensued upon these promotions.

H.—16.

Two constables resigned voluntarily in this district during the year.

There are now in the district 1 Inspector, 1 senior sergeant, 3 sergeants, 1 detective sergeant, 2 detectives, 42 constables, 4 district constables, and 1 Native constable.

11

Increases in the strength are required at Hastings, Gisborne, and Napier.

The station in Shakespeare Road, Napier, known as Scinde Police-station, was closed on the 5th October, 1912, and the constable in charge was transferred to a new station which was opened at Havelock North on the same date.

I anticipate next year's report by recording that on the 4th April the opening of a new station at Motu, on the Gisborne-Opotiki line of railway was authorized. A rented house was secured, and a constable appointed forthwith to take charge.

Takapau, in the Waipawa County, on Napier-Woodville Railway line, and Te Araroa, in Waiapu County, east coast, are the only places which require consideration in respect of new establishments.

The total number of offences reported during the year ending the 31st December, 1911, was 1,874, and for the year 1912, 2,197, an increase of 323. Of this number, 2,156 were prosecuted—that is, 98 per cent. The principal increases are found in the summary offences, viz.: Assaults, 15; disturbing congregations, 15; drunkenness, 134; failing to maintain, 21; fisheries offences, 16; furious riding, &c., 31; introducing liquor into Maori pa, 10; neglected children, 27. Increases are found in the following classes of serious crime: Abortion, procuring, 3; burglarious crimes, 10; detaining postal packets, 6; offences against girls, 6; forgery and uttering, 12; malicious injury, 17; mischief, 10; theft (undescribed), 19; theft by servants, 7; theft of cattle, 3. The following crimes show a decrease in numbers: Assaults on police, 5; gaming offences, 22; indecent exposure, 10; maliciously killing and maiming animals, 7; perjury, 4; theft, attempted, 7; theft from the person, 5. There were 2 cases of manslaughter, 1 being convicted; and 1 case of wife-murder, resulting in acquittal on the substituted charge of manslaughter. It is pleasing to record that in the following classes of serious offences no cases were reported: Abandoning children; arson and attempted arson; assaults, indecent; assault and robbery; bankruptcy offences; coinage offences; cruelty to children; incest; keeping disorderly houses; rape or attempted rape; robbery or extortion; smuggling; theft as bailee; theft from the person: threatening letters; wounding with intent.

theft from the person; threatening letters; wounding with intent.

Examination of the figures show that it is impossible adequately to account either for the increase or non-commission of the offences to which they relate. It is not possible to assign any common cause, or to summarize any number of causes to account for fluctuation in the number of so many different kinds of crime unconnected with each other, and committed in places wide apart. Had there been an abnormal increase in any one class, it might be possible to ascertain a reason for it. What is material is that it is clear from the percentages of prosecutions that increases are not due to inactivity on the part of the police in dealing with reported crime.

Generally speaking, the conduct of the Force throughout the district has been excellent. In only two cases have penalties been inflicted. The men have displayed self-denying alacrity in discharging extra duty when called upon during absence or illness of comrades. Attention and thoroughness characterize the work of the majority.

The serious crime reported in the district affords no grounds for alarm as regards excess. A part of the increase in the offences is no doubt due to increase in population and the attraction the district has in the form of ready employment, at good wages, for persons of roving habits and criminal tendencies. Only a small portion of the serious crime has been undetected. The most serious case of this kind was the dynamiting of a tradesman's safe in Napier. Nothing identifiable was taken, and nothing left which would afford a clue to the offender.

I consider it would be advisable to embody in the Police Force Act power or authority to arrest, without possession of the warrant, any person for whose arrest or commitment to prison a warrant is known to exist. This power has been in existence in New South Wales for many years. It is better that the power should exist than that it should be practised without authority and at the risk of the officer. This may involve a repeal or modification of section 61 of the Crimes Act, 1908.

Under section 263 of the Justices of the Peace Act, 1908, power is given to issue a warrant to search for goods which have been stolen; and under section 365 of the Crimes Act, 1908, power is given to obtain a warrant to search for things which afford evidence of a crime, for which the offender may be arrested without awarrant. There are some serious crimes for which the offender cannot be arrested without a warrant—for example, crimes relating to abortion, sections 220 to 223 of the Crimes Act; and conspiracy to defraud, under section 259. These are cases in which instruments, poison, drugs, and books are commonly exhibits as evidence of the crime, yet there is no power to issue a warrant to search for them, though it is frequently desirable to do so before the arrest of the offender. Besides, the power of search accruing from the arrest of accused is not sufficient to meet all possible requirements. The defects of section 365 of the Crimes Act have often been felt in practice.

The success and advantages following upon the provisions first enacted by the Indictable Offences Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1900, and now embodied in the Justices of the Peace Act, 1908, to enable accused persons to plead guilty to indictable offences when the depositions for the prosecution have been concluded before Justices or a Magistrate, suggest the question as to whether provision should not be made in purely summary cases to enable defendants on being served with a summons to enter at once a plea of guilty. In many cases defendant does not intend either to appear or defend, and the case goes by default upon formal proof of the offence. Defendant, however, is loaded with the cost of the witnesses, and the latter attend at much inconvenience, and perhaps disturbance of their own business or occupation. Often defendant intimates to the constable who serves the summons that he intends to plead guilty, and in such cases the attendance of witnesses can, as a rule, be dispensed with. The time and convenience as well as the expenses of witnesses are matters deserving consideration. A form of plea of guilty could be conveniently indorsed on the summons, and defendant could record the plea on the Court copy in the presence of the constable who has served it, or he could take his own copy before a Justice, indorse thereon his plea of guilty, and transmit it direct to the Court. This course need not preclude defendant from attending at the hearing and submitting an explanation or matter in mitigation. The provision at the outset might be made applicable only to offences punishable with a penalty in the first instance, of which breaches of by-laws are typical instances. In case of possible error, the right of rehearing would be available as a remedy.

The new regulations came into force on the 1st March, 1913, and so far I have received no representation respecting any hardship or inequality likely to be caused by them. Like all other regulations in the nature of by-laws, a good deal depends upon a proper discretion in enforcing them, as local circumstances differ widely. The regulations respecting examination for promotion, being an innovation as far as our Force is concerned, have attracted most attention.

I think that, on the whole, the idea of examination is acceptable, though some good men will find a difficulty in preparing for it, owing to their time and attention being engrossed by their official work, as in the case of sergeants in charge of the more important stations where there is no other non-commissioned officer, or constables in charge of busy stations; but I have no doubt that improved conditions will soon adjust this matter.

The provision of an instructor to coach for examination seems to be appreciated. Some of the constables have already applied for his assistance, others are evincing an interest in the subject, and are taking or considering other means to obtain assistance in preparation.

The knowledge that examinations are now compulsory is in itself a stimulating influence, and a marked interest in knowledge of regulations and law bearing on duty is becoming manifest. Hence it follows that whether candidates succeed or fail in their examinations one result will be an access of increased efficiency due to better knowledge. Another important result is that every member of the Force knows now definitely the conditions upon which his promotion depends.

Force knows now definitely the conditions upon which his promotion depends.

The provision of a regulation for weeding out proved inefficients within a reasonable limit of time after being sworn in is needed as a corollary to the regulations regarding examination for promotion.

During the year a new residence for the sergeant at Hastings was built. At Gisborne new barracks, in brick, are just completed, which will afford good accommodation for a number of unmarried constables, whereby the allowances now granted in lieu of quarters will be saved. Incidentally a cottage for the accommodation of a married constable will be provided by adaptation of the former offices.

A new police residence requires to be built at Patutahi. The lock-up is built on the Police Reserve, and is too remote from the constable's residence (rented).

At Tokomaru Bay, the constable, a single man, lodges at a place remote from the lock-up, with a river, liable to flood, between. A residence for a married constable should be built on the reserve on which the lock-up stands.

INSPECTOR WRIGHT, HAMILTON DISTRICT.

On the 1st February last the Thames Police District was extended to take in the following stations, viz.: Cambridge, Frankton Junction, Hamilton, Huntly, Kawhia, Kihikihi, Kirikiriroa, Ngaruawahia, Ongarue, Otorohanga, Raglan, Raurimu, Taumarunui, Te Awamutu, and Te Kuiti; and the head-quarters were removed to Hamilton. The district as enlarged is now known as the Hamilton Police District.

The authorized strength on the 31st March was as follows: 1 Inspector, 1 senior sergeant, 6 sergeants, 51 constables, 1 detective sergeant, 2 district constables, and 3 Native constables.

During the year an increase of I constable at Hamilton and I at Te Aroha has been made. At Opotiki, Taumarunui, and Te Kuiti the constables in charge have been replaced by sergeants, a much-needed alteration, which will provide the necessary supervision for the districts surrounding those stations.

Increases are now required as follows: 1 detective and 1 constable at Hamilton, and 1 constable at Rotorua. There is ample work for a detective at Hamilton and the surrounding stations, and another constable is indispensable, to provide for the proper performance of beat duty in the town. One man's time is almost wholly taken up with escorting and relieving duty, so that the beat duty has to suffer continually. At Rotorua beat duty cannot be kept up as it should be, and another constable is badly needed. The past season has been a very busy one, and the tourist traffic is increasing every year. With the present staff a constable can only be kept on duty during certain hours of the night, and a place like Rotorua should have a constable always on duty.

No stations have been opened or closed during the year.

During the year 2 constables died in the district, I constable retired on pension, and 1 resigned.

The offences return for the year ending 31st December, 1912, shows that 971 offences were reported, as compared with 842 the previous year, the net increase being 129. The increase is accounted for as follows: Abusive language and behaviour, 74; assaults, 29; failing to provide maintenance, 27; sureties of the peace, 115. The abusive-language, assaults, and sureties-of-the-peace cases mostly arose through the Waihi strike. There were decreases under the head of drunkenness, 60; mischief, 10; obstructing thoroughfares, 14; sly-grog selling, 13; theft, 52; theft from dwellings, 9.

With the exception of the Waihi cases, there is nothing in the return to call for special mention.

Out of 971 offences reported, 961 were accounted for either by arrest or summons.

H.-16.

Sly-grog selling has shown a considerable decrease as compared with previous years, and there is every reason to believe that the substantial penalties that have been inflicted have had a good effect. The fines for sly-grog selling last year amounted to £170, as compared with £340 the previous year.

Of 32 persons committed for trial, 27 were convicted at the Supreme Court.

The population throughout the district is steadily increasing, and the whole district is in a prosperous state. Settlement is progressing in every direction, and there are no unemployed. The population of Waihi was affected considerably by the strike, but is now on the mend.

It has been held that the premises used by a wholesale dealer are not "licensed premises" within the meaning of the Licensing Act, and it is therefore no offence under that Act for the licensee to sell at all hours of the day or night, or on Sundays, so long as he does not sell less than 2 gallons, and it is no offence for a person to be found on such premises in pursuit of liquor. I think it would be an advantage if the wholesale dealers were restricted as regards hours of business the same as retail dealers, and that section 194 of the Act be made to apply also.

Under section 3, subsection (ee), of the Police Offences Act, 1908, it has been held that either an intent to provoke a breach of the peace must be proved or that a breach of the peace must actually take place before a conviction can be recorded. The consequence is that a lot of abusive language and conduct can be used in a public place to the serious annoyance of respectable citizens, and the only remedy is by way of application for sureties. I think it would be a distinct advantage if the section was amended by omitting all words after "passers by."

INSPECTOR NORWOOD, INVERCARGILL DISTRICT.

The authorized strength of the district on the 31st March last was: 1 Inspector, 4 sergeants, 32 constables, 1 detective sergeant, 1 acting-detective, and 1 district constable.

During the year there has been no alteration in the strength or disposition of the men in the district.

The casualties were 1 death, 1 dismissal, and 1 voluntary resignation.

I am of the opinion that the time has arrived for stationing a constable at Tokonui. The necessity for this was fully gone into in my predecessor's annual report for last year.

Tenders for new police-stations at Mataura and Tapanui were advertised for in 1912, but there is no indication of any commencement being made to build. Both stations are badly required. The constables at both places are living in rented houses.

During the year ending the 31st December, 1912, 713 offences were reported, as against 697 the previous year, an increase of 16. Of the 713 cases reported, arrests or summonses resulted in 673 cases. The principal decreases occur under the following headings: Drunkenness, 42; sly-grog cases, 20; disorderly conduct, 17; vagrancy, 8. The principal increases were assaults, 5; breaches of the peace, 7; burglary, breaking and entering, 27; deserting vessels, 7; failing to provide, 21; illegally on premises, 8; theft, 18. The increase in the number of burglary and breaking-and-entering cases, and also theft, is accounted for by the unusual number of youths who committed these offences and were dealt with in the Juvenile Court. All the cases dealt with were of the usual kind, and none of them warrant any special comment.

The amount of fines inflicted for sly-grog selling during the year amounted to £106. Several offenders were also sent to gaol without the option of a fine.

The conduct of the men, with one or two exceptions, has been excellent. In 3 instances fines were inflicted for breaches of the regulations.

Both the detective and uniform branches have been most assiduous in the performance of their duties. They have worked in harmony for the good of the service, with the best results.

There has not been a large increase of population in the district during the year. and Gore are probably the only places where there has been an appreciable increase. The inauguration of the tramway service at Invercargill has caused an impetus of population in the suburbs, and it will not be long before additional police will be required to ensure a systematic patrol in the thickly populated parts in the outskirts.

The district has received a serious set-back by the extensive floods which took place on the 28th and 29th March, resulting in the drowning of two settlers. The police-stations at Gore, Mataura, Wyndham, and Otautau all had from 1 ft. to 3 ft. of water in the buildings, causing damage to furniture and effects.

INSPECTOR PHAIR, GREYMOUTH DISTRICT.

The strength of the Force in this district on the 31st March last was 1 Inspector, 2 senior sergeants, 3 sergeants, 36 constables, and I detective sergeant, being I constable short of the authorized strength of 44 allowed for this district.

No new stations were opened in this district during the past year, but a new station, now nearing completion, at Cobden will be opened shortly. New police buildings at Murchison have also been erected during the year, and are at present occupied by the constable there.

During the past year 1 constable resigned, voluntarily. There were no other casualties.

H.—16.

During the year 1912, 1,013 offences of all kinds were reported, as against 877 for 1911, an increase of 136. The principal increases were gaming offences 13; assaults, common, 21; failing to maintain near relatives, 13; malicious injury to property, 31; opium-smoking, 15; and thefts (undescribed), 36. The increase in the number of offences for gaming and opium-smoking is attributable to more attention having been given by the police to the Chinese quarters in Greymouth and other towns in this district; while the number of cases of maintenance and theft are attributable to the dull times, owing to the miners (about 700) in the Consolidated Group of mines at the Globe and Waiuta being on strike for over six months. The increase in the number of offences for malicious injury to property is difficult to account for, except it be a spirit of mischief which at times prevails among a certain section of this and all other communities. Of the offences reported, 976 were detected and the offenders either arrested or summoned, leaving a balance of about $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. undetected.

The conduct of the members of the Force in this district during the past year has been generally good, and I have only found it necessary to inflict one fine.

No serious offences were reported during the past year.

I have no recommendations to make as to any amendment in the criminal law, which at present seems sufficient to meet all purposes. There is, however, one matter to which I beg to draw attention, viz.: at present there seems to be no power given to Stipendiary Magistrates to vary their decisions, when given and entered in the criminal-record book, committing an offender to a certain prison, although he may afterwards be arrested a considerable distance from that particular prison, and much nearer another prison, the cost of escort thus being thrown upon the Police Department. Two instances of this kind have lately arisen in this district, the Magistrate holding he had no power to vary the warrant from one prison to another.
