

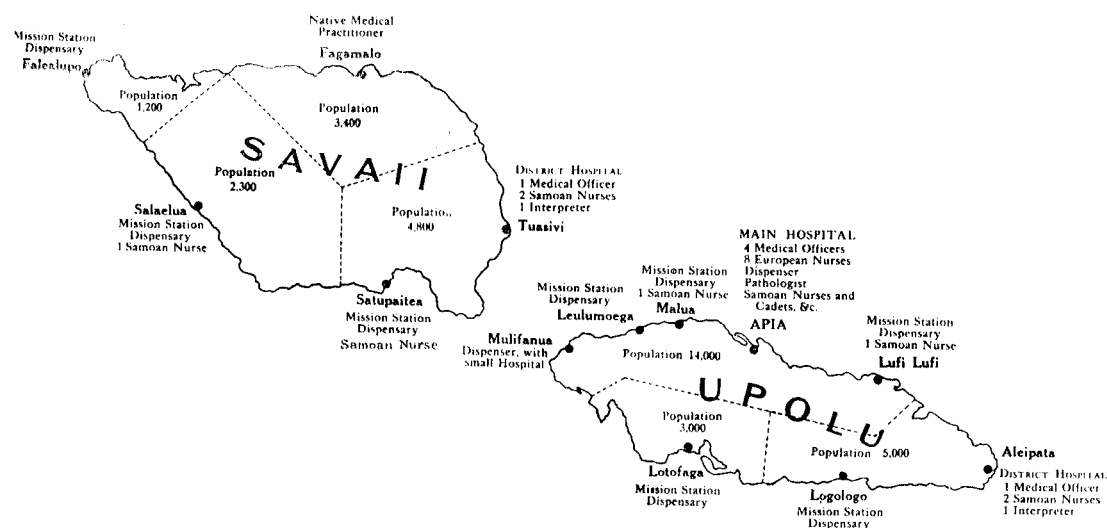

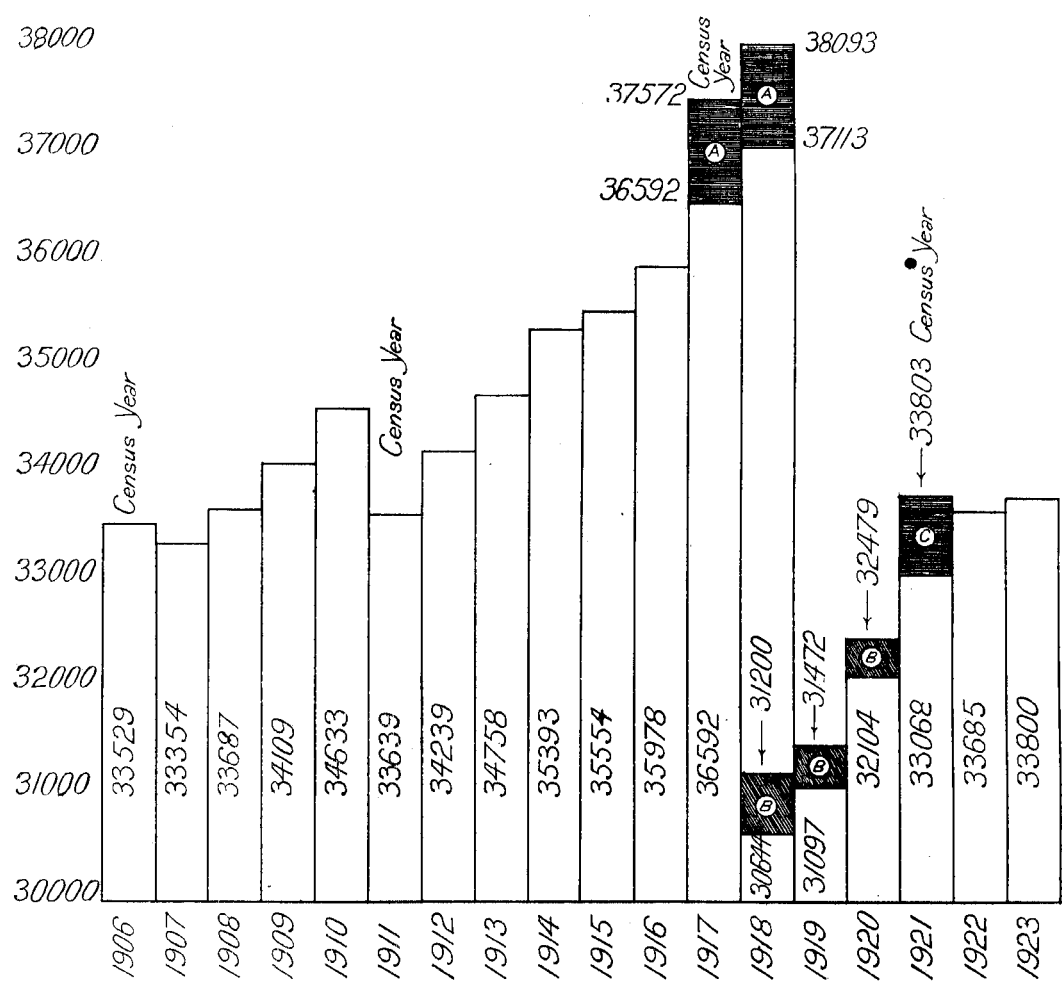

FIG. 14.—Map of Samoa, showing positions of out-stations and dispensaries. Topography of the country is the deciding factor in the delimitation of districts. In Savaii lava-fields divide the island into three sections. In Upolu, mountains limit the areas. In the most populous area shown, that round Apia, it is possible to travel by motor-car from the boundary near Lufilufi to that beyond Mulifanua. Elsewhere in the islands travelling has to be done on foot, on horseback, or by boat.

A = Probable overestimate of population at 1917 Census.
B = Underestimate of population as shewn by working back from 1921 Census.
C = Overestimate of population at 1921 Census, discovered by careful re-checking of the returns.

FIG. 15.—Graph showing Native population of Western Samoa, 1906–23.